The global anesthesia monitoring devices market size was valued at USD 808.7million in 2015. The rising safety awareness amongst the physicians and the soaring volume of surgeries is expected to boost the demand for these devices. For instance, according to the CDC (Centres for Disease Control and Prevention), in 2014, about 51.4 million surgeries were performed in the U.S. Moreover, as per the American Society of Plastic Surgeons (ASPS) there has been a 3.0% rise in the number of plastic surgeries in the United States in 2014 as compared to in 2013.

With the latest surgical procedures in use today, the life expectancy of individuals has extended due to which, the global geriatric population is on the rise; for instance, according to the WHO there would be an approximate two-fold hike in the geriatric population, from 12.0% in 2015 to 22.0% in 2050. This demographic is highly susceptible to chronic disorders and age-related degenerative diseases, which has resulted in the mounting pressure of surgeries. Hence, this growing base of the geriatric population prone to diseases is anticipated to create a demand for continuous perioperative monitoring, which is expected to spur the growth of the anesthesia monitoring devices market.
